

CASE STUDY

Paper Mill from the United States to Saudi Arabia

The journey of an over dimensional paper mill from the US to the Middle East.

- From: United States
- To: Saudi Arabia

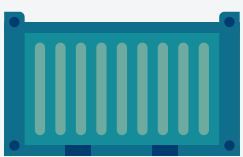

The project logistics of this endeavor involved a complex crossing to the Middle East requiring:

30 containers

3 months of careful planning

45 days of logistics execution

60 experts in multiple countries

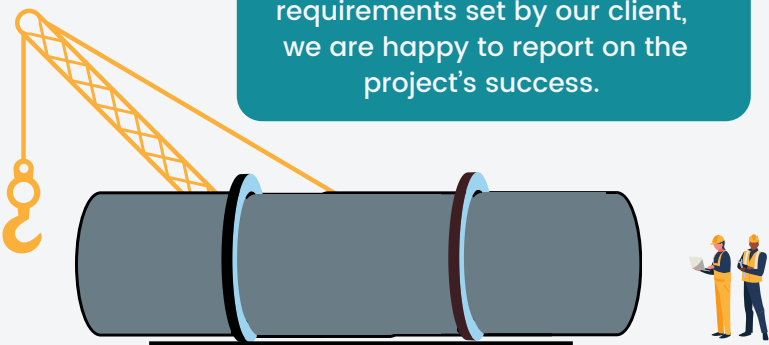

Some of the potential roadblocks and logistics constraints we faced on this project:

- Packaging and crate calculations
- Labeling readiness
- Fumigation requirements
- Quality assessments
- Multiple vendors coordination
- Compliance and security requirements

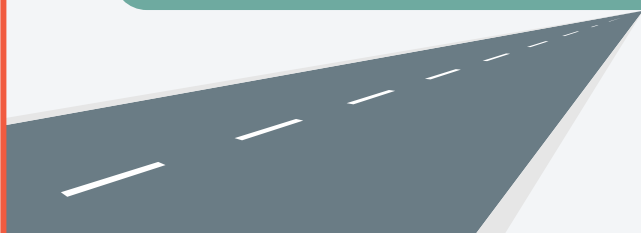

By working proactively and efficiently to meet all of the requirements set by our client, we are happy to report on the project's success.

FUN FACT:

At one point of the journey, our convoy required four police escorts and five bucket trucks to travel through a single five-mile stretch of road.

"Vector is willing to look after a unique situation and do things differently with great results. They listened to our needs, engaged quite early in the process, and demonstrated absolute attention to detail—delivering quality not just along the journey but in every aspect involving the customer service."

— Bill Grove

When you need a logistics company with the experience, connections, and expertise to get your next project delivered on time and intact, you need Vector Global Logistics.

